WORLD HISTORY GRANTS

Our Shared Past

A collaborative grants program offered by the British Council and the Social Science Research Council

Open for applications, next deadline is May 31st 2012. Apply Now

The British Council and the Social Science Research Council have announced the launch of Our Shared Past, a collaborative grants program designed to encourage new approaches to world history curriculum and curricular content design in Europe, the Middle East, North Africa, and North America. The program is supported by the Carnegie Corporation of New York.

Our Shared Past is designed to promote the development of international scholarly communities that are committed to analyzing history curriculum and reframing the teaching of world history through the identification of new scholarship and the development of new curricular content that illustrate shared cultural, economic, military, religious, social, and scientific networks and practices as well as shared global norms and values that inform world history and society. The project will encourage both the synthesis of existing scholarship on these topics and the exploration of concrete ways that this reframing can be successfully introduced into teaching curriculum in European, Middle Eastern, North African, and North American contexts.

Grants will be made to research teams and research centers at university campuses in the United States, including but not limited to Title VI National Resource Centers. While the program especially encourages research teams/consortia that include partner institutions from Britain and/or the Middle East/North Africa region, the principal investigator must be based at a U.S. university.

The program anticipates awarding five grants of up to $75,000 for a period of twelve months. Grants may support workshops that convene scholars and advisory boards as well as partnerships between regional educational organizations and advocates. Additionally, projects may use a grant to support public-facing events that allow for engagement with world history curriculum reform.

Visit the SSRC Web site for complete program guidelines and application procedures (<http://www.ssrc.org/fellowships/our-shared-past/>).

Deadline: May 31, 2012

PRIZES FOR POPULATION HEALTH IMPROVEMENTS

ROADMAPS TO HEALTH PRIZE

Honoring the efforts and accomplishments of U.S. communities working at the forefront of health improvement

Up to six $25,000 winning communities to be announced in early 2013!

The Roadmaps to Health Prize, part of the County Health Rankings & Roadmaps, a collaboration of the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation and the University of Wisconsin Population Health Institute that aims to show what communities can do to create healthier places to live, learn, work, and play, seeks to recognize and honor the efforts and accomplishments of United States communities working at the forefront of population health improvement.

The program is open to all communities in the U.S., large and small, urban and rural. The prize is rooted in the idea that every community is on a unique journey toward better health and that communities' stories of success are as diverse as their populations. Judges will assess each community individually, looking for tangible signs of improvement relative to current health status and available resources.

The award is a place-based prize that will honor whole communities. Only one prize will be given per community, so collaboration on applications within communities is strongly encouraged. For the purposes of the prize, "community" is defined as one of the following: town, city, county, region (such as contiguous towns, cities, or counties), and tribe or tribal community.

Applicant communities will select a local entity to submit the application and serve as the primary contact application on their behalf. These "community-designated contact organizations" may be formal or informal entities within a community; examples include but are not limited to businesses, coalitions, government agencies, hospitals or healthcare organizations, local foundations, public health departments, schools, or social service agencies.

Each applicant community also will be asked to designate a local governmental or tax-exempt charitable nonprofit entity to accept the $25,000 cash award that comes with the prize, should it win, on its behalf. The community-designated contact organization may serve this role, if eligible.

Up to six communities will be honored with the prize in early 2013.

Visit the Roadmaps to Health Web site for complete program information and application materials.

AVON AWARDS FOR DOMESTIC VIOLENCE PREVENTION

Global Domestic Violence Prevention App Challenge

In honor of International Women's Day 2012, the Avon Foundation for Women and the Institute of Medicine have announced a new app challenge called Ending Violence @ Home.

The global competition invites teams of individuals from the fields of domestic violence prevention and communications technologies to come together to raise awareness about and to help prevent domestic violence against women and children. Teams from both the United States and abroad are encouraged to register.

Mobile- and Web-based apps built on platforms open to the general public are eligible and will be judged based on the integration of evidence-based information, design and usability, creativity and innovation, potential for impact, and transferability to low- and middle-income countries. Apps can focus on primary, secondary, or tertiary prevention. Submissions must be accompanied by a proof of concept statement

For the purposes of the challenge, the term domestic violence includes all forms of intimate partner violence, dating violence, child abuse, and others forms of violence that occur in the home.

Teams from any country may compete in the challenge and team members may be from more than one country. At least one team member must work in domestic violence prevention, for example as a researcher, student, or staff member of an advocacy organization.

Four prizes totaling $25,000 will be awarded ($10,000 for first place, $7,500 for second, $5,000 for third, and $2,500 for fourth).

Visit the IOM Web site for complete program information, submission procedures, and to register a team (<http://www.iom.edu/Activities/Global/ViolenceForum/EndViolenceHome.aspx>).

MILITARY APPRECIATION MONTH

Veteran Tickets Foundation (www.vettix.org)

Through The Veteran Tickets Foundation, now those who care about our Military and Veterans have a way to give back. Everyday, in every city, there are events with empty seats that could be filled by those who serve or served. More than that, many event tickets are simply unaffordable for average people. We believe the events that bring Americans together in the spirit of celebration, competition and camaraderie—those all-American moments are the times we need welcome and acknowledge our Veterans.

USO – Official Site (<http://www.uso.org/programs/>)

Millions of times each year at hundreds of locations around the world, the USO lifts the spirits of America's troops and their families. A nonprofit, congressionally chartered, private organization, the USO relies on the generosity of individuals, organizations and corporations to support its activities.

Every day, our heroes in uniform put their lives on the line to protect the freedoms we hold so dear. Our troops are serving in desolate locations, dealing with multiple deployments and missing their families and friends back home. Whether stationed in the mountains of Afghanistan or recovering courageously in a hospital in Germany, our troops and their families deserve the very best we can give.

The USO is not a government agency. It relies on the generosity of the American people. People just like you. There are so many ways we can let our troops know they are not forgotten. Choose the one that's right for you.

Donate Now: Make a tax-deductible, online contribution right now.

Join the Proud Patriots Club: Your monthly contribution of any amount demonstrates your continuous commitment to the troops.

Donate In Honor or In Memory of Someone Special: A gift in honor of someone's current or past military service, or a memorial contribution, is a meaningful way to support our men and women in uniform today.

Send an eGift to Celebrate a Milestone: Trying to figure out a gift for the person or couple who has everything? A donation to the USO to celebrate a birthday, anniversary or other special event will be long remembered.

Donate through Other Programs: Support the USO through MissionFish on eBay or donate an unwanted vehicle or cell phone.

Whichever way you choose to donate, thank you for your support of America's troops and their families.
